BUILDINGS IN KŐSZEG

Szőlőjövésnek könyve Phylloxera-epidemic

A photograph of a forest path with hikers. The path is paved and leads through a dense forest of tall, thin trees. Sunlight filters through the canopy, creating dappled shadows on the path. Three hikers are visible in the distance, walking away from the camera. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and natural.

Changes in life of people due to tourism

POSITIVE

- development of the town and the region
- higher standard of living
- esthetics becomes important for the locals, they keep the streets and parks clean, plant flowers
- The local government (leaders of the town) is encouraged by tourists to restore ruined buildings and monuments.
Examples: Main Square, Jurisics Square, Jurisich Castle and the Synagog
- more job opportunity, less unemployed people
- Many locals who work in tourism build personal relationship with tourists and as a result these tourists will come.
- development of language knowledge
- tourism helps get to know new cultures and people
- Tourism at the border in Kőszeg: Many foreigners especially Austrians come to Kőszeg as NOT tourists but to go to hairdresser's or dentist's.

NEGATIVE

- periods (winter) → not so many tourists → restaurants, hotels, etc. are empty → locals do not have jobs KÉP ÜRES ÉTTEREM
- opening hours: tourists want longer opening hours but locals don't
- In case of Kőszeg, there are not too many sights so tourists spend maximum 3-5 days here.
- The prices of restaurants, hotels, cafés, etc. become too high for the locals, but for foreign tourists they are reasonable.
